Agglomerate Marble - is formed from natural marble which has been crushed and mixed with special resins, then polished to give a flaw free finish.

Limestone - Formed over 50 millions of years ago and quarried in Portugal, the main characteristics are individual veins and fossil formations, making each piece beautifully unique.

Parker Fireplaces manufacture using only the highest quality materials available.

PLEASE NOTE...

All materials vary in colour and pattern. Each individual piece is unique and can contain fossils, blemishes, pyrites and other inconsistencies. These form part of the characteristics of natural and engineered materials and should not be treated as faults.
